

Course Calendars for PSYC 2103, Spring 2016 semester

Below is the course calendar for one of the face-to-face sections of PSYC 2103 taught in the Spring 2016 semester, showing the specific dates on which the readings were covered. The “Erikson” denotations in the “Assignment” column represent writing assignments in which students were asked to relate course material and life events to the developmental stages proposed by Erik Erikson. This series of assignments has been used in previous semesters and was not created specifically for this semester’s section of the course.

T 5/3	8:00AM – Exam 3 Readings 19 through 28

Below is the course calendar for the online section of PSYC 2103 taught in the Spring 2016 semester. For this section, the OER was organized into 14 learning modules. Two readings were covered in each module, in the order they appeared in the OER. Readings were not presented as being explicitly connected with each other except where thematically appropriate. Each module contained specific assignments for the students to complete; these assignments could be completed in any order and are listed in the far right column. The dates listed in the far left column represent the due dates for the work in each of the modules.
